

I could spend my time on the internet to lookup local weather. I pay for internet access, and I pay for XM radio. Both of these services are superior to commercial radio, that's why I pay for them. FM broadcasters should have made a better product without so many commercials to keep me as a listener. XM & public radio are better because the listener's (and their money) decide what will be broadcast. XM should provide whatever is the best value for the subscribers. Leave XM alone to provide the content I pay for. FM broadcasters can stop playing the same 3 formats in every city with 30% commercial if they want listeners and stop whining about the XM.
